NEWSLETTER – FEBRUARY 2015

2015....so far so good. Okay, a little nasty weather but that is to be expected. Gigs are a bit light this month, some things moved, some cancelled, some postponed, but we'll carry on. The GA3 plus NY Horns hosted the first of what we hope to be many Pig Gigs, and oh my, this could really be the start of something big!!! Folks, it was a slammin' good time all the way around. It was a test run and we hope to expand the next one to include all. Stay warm, be safe on the roads and enjoy the winter weather as best you can, spring will be here soon enough

Nothin' quite like New Year's Eve with The Jukes!

show before they're all gone.. too. Hope to see y'all there

THE JUKES: After an early February trip to play a couple of Jukes shows in North Carolina, we've cleared our schedules so we can all learn a bunch of new (for us) tunes for the big Stone Pony shows at the end of the month. These shows promise to be unforgettable - the first night, we're doin' rare Jukes songs and the second night, the songs of Bruce Springsteen - and NOT just the ones in our usual rotation, like "The Fever" and "Walk You All The Way Home." Nope, there will be a whole setlist full of songs we've never performed. I'm sure Southside also has some surprises up his sleeve, too. I believe the Saturday show has already sold out, so get your tickets to the Friday

At the State Theatre in New Brunswick

GLENN STREET LIVE: GA3 with New York Horns opened up a brand new year for Glenn Street Live last month. John Isley and I were joined by our Jukes brother Chris Anderson on trumpet, the great Dave Longworth on drums and Greg Novick killed on bass. While viewers couldn't tell, we reconfigured and rewired the whole Glenn Street set during our hiatus.

With John out on tour with Diana Ross for most of February, Glenn Street will be dark for a few weeks, but we'll be back in March. Next month, I'll also have a full report on our first - of hopefully many, many more - Pig Gig. In the meantime, please keep monitoring our Facebook, Twitter and YouTube pages for news on upcoming shows

Tunin' up for the first Glenn Street of 2015

Performing in front of the screen at BB King's club is always pretty trippy!
